During Coffee County Commission meeting

EMA director cautions that COVID-19 numbers are trending up for county

by Linda Hodge, Editor

A caution James Brown, Coffee County EMA director, painted a concerning picture Monday, July 13, regarding COVID-19 numbers during the Coffee County Commission meeting held in New Brockton.

"According to the ADPH [Alabama Department of Public Health] risk tracker, Coffee County is in the very high risk category now, as is most of the wiregrass area," Brown said Monday morning.

As of Monday morning, Brown said the county had a cumulative count of 429 total cases of COVID-19 reported [that number was up to 453 as of Tuesday afternoon]. He said of the total number that 91 were active cases.

"If you remember we had been holding steady at 40-50 active daily cases," Brown said. "Now, we are at 90-100 daily active cases in Coffee County. So, our active cases have basically doubled."

He said the county had increased by 85 cases over the past 14 days while statewide the number of cases had increased by 16,520 over the last 14 days.

"About 13 percent of those tested are coming back positive," Brown said. "The state wants that number to be below 10 percent."

He added that according to CDC guidelines for reopening everything back to 'how it was' before COVID-19, the percentage of positive cases needs to be below 5 percent.

"We are more than double where we need to be," Brown said.

He said many people are saying they believe the positive cases are increasing because the number of those being tested is increasing. However, Brown said the numbers do not support that theory.

"The positivity rate should stay the same no matter how many tests are performed," Brown said. "It's not. It [the positivity rate] is growing."

He said hospitalizations also are on the rise for those infected with the virus with TRAFFIC CHANGES IN DOWNTOWN ELBA!! Alabama Department of Transportation crews were in Elba on Tuesday of this week making a long-expected change to the flow of traffic in downtown Elba. Three downtown intersection changed from traffic light operated to stop sign intersections. The photo above shows the intersection of Davis Street and Factory Avenue changed to an "All Way" stop while the intersection of Davis Street and Claxton Avenue was changed to the same. Another change was the intersection of Claxton Avenue and Simmons Street to a two-way stop (on Simmons St). The traffic lights at these intersections have been switched to flashing lights for the next 90 days as motorists get accustomed to the changes. Motorists are strongly encouraged to use extreme caution in the downtown area as all adjust to the changes.

Superintendent tells CCBOE members he expects more students from Enterprise to enroll at New Brockton again this school year

by Linda Hodge, Editor

The Coffee County Board of Education met Thursday evening, July 9, for the regular monthly meeting, and several personnel matters were approved by board members.

Upon the recommendation of superintendent Kevin Killingsworth board members accepted the resignations of teachers Joshua Tate Luker [New Brockton High School], and Jan Moore [Zion Chapel].

Moore is retiring, effective Aug. 1st, after 30+ years teaching.

Two teacher hires also were approved by board members. Kevin Bond was hired as a teacher at Kinston while Kevin Kodya was hired as a teacher at New Brockton High School.

Regarding support personnel, the board revised the custodian contract for Kayla Deal [Zion Chapel] from a 10-month contract to a 12-month contract.

The board also approved Theresa Hughes as a bus driver at New Brockton Schools.

Prior to the conclusion of the meeting, Killingsworth said there were still a few personnel spots to be filled before the start of the school year in August. He told board members he would probably as for a called meeting in a couple of weeks to handle those matters along with some other things.

Last Thursday's meeting included a 20-25 minute executive session in which board attorney James Tarbox certified was necessary to allow for discussion of good name and character of a person associated with the school system, and to discuss safety and procedures for those associated with the system. Upon returning from the executive session board president Brian McLeod said no action was taken during the executive session, and the board did not take any action after returning to the open meeting either.

Killingsworth said the reopening plan for schools is a complete as it could be currently; however, he said this is live working document and things will change before school starts as well as throughout the school year due to the coronavirus pandemic. He said changes would be necessary as guidance is delivered to local systems from state officials.

"Every aspect of school has changed," Killingsworth said. "This will be something we all are experiencing for the very first time together, and because of the pandemic, school will not look like it ever has before."

The super said he realizes it is frustrating for everyone because things are changing constantly and so rapidly, but he said he assures all that the county school system is developing the best plan it could to move forward starting Aug. 10th when students return to the classrooms.

"We have done some training already with our staff, but we are going to do more training on safety, sanitation, etc. before the stu-

Cate Capps asks City Council to consider annual birthday celebration for City of Elba

by Linda Hodge, Editor

Young miss Cate Capps made her first citizen's request of the Elba City Council during the council's meeting Monday evening, July 13th.

A soon-to-be second grader at Elba Elementary School, Capps asked the mayor and council to consider helping in paying for and planning a yearly birthday party for the City of Elba.

Elba's incorporation date is April 13, 1853. The city turned 167 years old this year.

"I have never heard of Elba having a birthday party before, and I think that we should do one for the city," Capps said. "Elba should have a birthday party because we celebrate America's birthday."

Capps said the party should include things like fireworks, a parade, balloons with the age of the city, and, of course, a cake.

"The city of Elba is special. My family is from here," Capps said. "The people make the town special. I love Elba so much."

Mayor Mickey Murdock thanks Cate for addressing the council with her idea, saying he believes she has a good idea in mind.

"I am glad you have taken an interest and love Elba," the mayor said to Capps. "I will pass your idea on to the next mayor."

Cate is the daughter of Colby and Nichole Capps of Elba. Both of her parents are teachers within the Elba City School System. She has one younger brother.

Elba man killed Monday in Pike County wreck

A two-vehicle crash at approximately 8:15 p.m. Monday, July 13, claimed the life of a Coffee County man.

Brian James Smith, age 21, of Elba, was killed when the motorcycle he was operating collided with a 2010 Ford F-150 driven by James Turner, age 84, of Troy. Smith was transported to a local hospital where he was pronounced deceased.

Alabama State Troopers said Smith was not wearing a helmet at the time of the crash, which occurred on AL Hwy. 87 near the 56 mile marker (Springhill Community) approximately seven miles south of Troy.

Nothing further is available as ALEA State Troopers continue to investigate.

Jane Brunson seeks reelection to Elba's District 3 council seat

Jane B. Brunson has announced she is a candidate for reelection to the City Council in Elba's upcoming municipal election. She has represented District 3 since 2012.

An Elba resident since 1987, Brunson feels her strongest asset as a city council member is her financial background. She began an accounting career in 1979 following graduation from The University of Alabama. She has worked as a tax accountant with Carr, Riggs and Ingram LLC since 1993 and holds the CPA (Certified Public Accountant) designation.

In addition to her service on the Elba City Council, Brunson is a member of the Elba Water and Electric Board. She has attended training sponsored by the Alabama League of Municipalities and represented Elba at "Your Town" in 2015.

Brunson was a member of the ACE (Alabama Communities of Excellence) committee and was part of the presentation team that traveled to Birmingham when Elba was selected to participate in the Main Street Alabama program. Earlier this year, she was selected to participate in the LEAD Wiregrass program.

She serves on the Evergreen Cemetery Committee and is a member of the Elba Rotary Club.

Jane and her husband, Jack, are the parents of four grown children who were all educated in Elba City Schools.

Jane and Jack opened The Lodge on Pea River in 2013 to give visitors another overnight lodging option in Elba and to support the development of ecotourism along the riverfront. The Lodge is adjacent to Summerlyn Park and within walking distance of the Pea River Outdoors canoe and kayak rental center.

Brunson is excited that Elba's water and sewer infrastructure project, which has been several years in planning, will be getting underway soon with an anticipated duration of 18 months. She also is excited about the potential for new businesses as completion of the US Highway 84 project through the Elba City Limits nears.

Brunson said she hopes the citizens of District 3 will allow her to continue serving as their representative to the Elba City Council by reelecting her on Aug. 25th.

"Facts do not cease to exist because they are ignored." — Aldous Huxley

Alabama newspaper managers Phil Sanguinetti of the Aniston Star, age 100, and Barrett Sheldon Jr. of the Decatur Daily, age 89, each died in the past week. Death is a part of life that we all must face, but observing some deaths impacts us as individuals more than others. We liked and admired both these gentlemen. Phil was very low key and managed from the background. His quiet voice was important in many, many meetings we each attended. He seemed awful weak (and left early, assisted by an aide) at the last Birmingham meeting we both attended. Barrett had a different personality and had a lifelong reputation for using his family newspaper to make positive impacts on the community and for the people of the Decatur area. We last saw Barrett when Heddy and I were on a cruise where Barrett and wife Tolly were our delightful assigned table mates for shipboard dinners. Barrett was still chaffing at the cost of hosting his three children and the grandchildren on a Mediterranean vacation the previous summer. Don't worry, he didn't miss any meals as a result of his moment of weakness in agreeing to the arrangement.

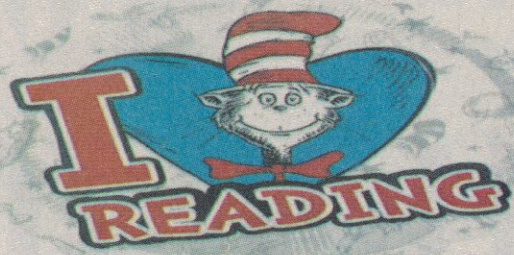

A 30-year-old Texas man who recently attended a "Covid party" died after being infected with the virus. Just before he died, he told his nurse: "I think I made a mistake. I thought this was a hoax, but it's not." Hopefully our friends and regular readers will not make the same mistake. Be safe, wear your mask and wash your hands . . . regularly! Some of us will contract the highly contagious infection. It will be mild or 'unnoticeable' in some cases; in others it will be aggravating while for a few it will be extremely painful; then a small percentage will die as did the Texas man mentioned above.

33-year-old TV star of 'Glee', Naya Rivera was missing since her 4-year-old son Josey Dorsey was found last Wednesday in a pontoon boat alone on Lake Piru north of Los Angeles. Days later her body was found in a very deep part of the lake. The child told officials that his mother helped him back into the boat and when he looked around — she was gone. Of course, this child will forever miss his mother, but he will have a heartwarming story to tell his children and grandchildren. It is a story of a mother demonstrating a love for her son that far exceeded her own personal desire to live.

On Tuesday Alabama voters finally got to settle their Party preferences for the November General Election. Coffee County only had three (3) Republican races still undecided come Tuesday morning while the local Democrats decided all their November candidates the first time around. At press time Tuesday night, the votes were still being counted, but hopefully all our readers were on the winning side . . . (whatever that turned out to be)!

Our predictions of more clamp downs on "business as usual" in Alabama is a bit slow in happening, but with the number of COVID 19 cases continuing to increase, we don't retract the prediction that it will happen, sooner if not later. California has retracted their re-openings due to the surge in new virus infections and Florida is moving in the same direction as their active cases balloon.

We dodged the bullet back in May when Heddy and yours truly both hugged a niece who stopped by the office to give us each some new masks to wear. We later learned that the allergies she was complaining about was . . . yep 'the virus'. She was later so sick that she called her two adult sons to tell them what to do 'when she died'. Fortunately for her . . . AND US . . . it all ended on the positive side. We didn't contact the bug and she survived and is going to be OK.

Editor's Note: Cuzin Lou Lou's column is meant for entertaining purposes only as she shares her stories.

Everybody's got 'pet peeves' and Cuzin Lou Lou is not exempt from that. Several of her "peeves" just happen to come from improper use of the English language.

And, when you come from Somewhere Over Yonder — well, let's just say the use of the language can be interesting at times. That translates to many a headache for 'ole Lou Lou.

Well! Leave it to the world of Facebook to send Lou Lou into a complete tizzy last week!

She was scrolling through the dramaloid [Lou Lou just made that one up, lol] when she comes across a post where the folks at Merrian Webster publishing have decided to start recognizing "irregardless" as an official word.

Immediately Cuzin Lou Lou's undies twisted into a tight knot, and she began screaming like a child that had just missed the ice cream truck!

"What in the name of Yonder?!?!?" Lou Lou exclaimed. "Absolutely not! This is unacceptable!"

Surely this is a joke, Lou Lou concluded. So, she decided to do a little investigating. Nope! Not a joke. Merrian Webster says the word has been in its dictionary [as the nonstandard use of regardless] because it has been in widespread and near-constant use since 1795. The word apparently has been in the Merrian Webster's unabridged dictionary edition since 1934. Other dictionaries also recognize it as a word.

It is at this point in Lou Lou's research that she decides she might as well throw caution to the wind and either start drinking or each a gallon of ice cream! "How in the world can this be?!?!?" she questions. "Saying 'irregardless' is like saying without without regard — it's redundant!"

The good news was that Lou Lou did find that not all accept the wrong use of regardless, such as the dictionary folks — who claim "they don't create the language, just record it." What a copout!

Not all was lost, and Lou Lou was able to control her urges to binge on something...

The use of "irregardless" is still discouraged in formal writing. Thank you, Lord!!! NPR [national public radio] folks reportedly have told their professionals to "just say regardless" — well Yes!! And, the Associated Press stylebook still the use of "irregardless" as a double negative. Double yes to that!!!

Further, the American Heritage dictionary notes that a panel of its experts "roundly disapprove of the use of the word."

So... in the end, instead of having a coronary because the 'end of the English language was imminent', Lou Lou was able to settle back down, and be proud because at least those in her world of writing have not lost all their marbles...yet!

You can be assured, Lou Lou will still be using regardless in her speech, writing, etc. She does not give a hoot what the good dictionary folks at Merrian Webster accept just because it has been widely "misused" for years.

Until next time...God Bless and Keep Smiling!

The Phases of Grief

Grief isn't something you process overnight; in some ways, it's something you may never fully "get over." Rather, grief is a journey, and it can encompass a range of moods and reactions. There is a classic, five-stage model that maps out the grief journey. While your personal experience may not totally align with this model, it can nevertheless be a useful tool for charting your feelings.

The five classic phases of grief include:

1. Denial. In the denial phase, your grief is so fresh and so raw you may feel like you're in a state of shock. Those in the denial phase simply want to push forward and try to make it through each day, and they may not spend much time actually thinking about their feelings.
2. Anger. Next comes the anger phase, in which those who have lost a loved one may feel deserted, abandoned by God, or simply resentful over the time they've lost with their loved one. Anger is a good and healthy part of the grieving process.
3. Bargaining. In the bargaining phase, it may be tempting to try to "make a deal" with God or with the universe, hoping you may wake up and find your loved one's death was all a dream. Bargaining is often accompanied by intense feelings of guilt.
4. Depression. A season of melancholy is to be expected from those who grieve. Depression may also feel like profound state of emptiness or meaninglessness.
5. Acceptance. Those who "accept" death may still feel quite sad, and this does not mean their grieving journey is over—but it does mean they have reached a healthy place of truly engaging with their feelings and being honest about how grief has impacted them.

SPORTS NEWS

Views From The Pressbox

By Ricky Mularz, Sports Editor

As the school year gets closer and closer our grandson Lawson all of the sudden isn't quite so sure he is ready to head back. He has said for months that he is ready to go back, but that has now changed that while he is looking forward to seeing his friends, he really isn't ready for school. After being out since late March due to health concerns, it is time to get back to school and resume learning.

For what it is worth....

 Alabama High School Athletic Association executive director Steve Savarese reported last week in a newspaper interview that on a scale of 1-10 he was "10 positive" the fall sports in the state would start on time. He admitted that COVID-19 stats change on a daily basis and could lead to a change, but the state sports head felt that the football and volleyball seasons would start as scheduled on August 20. He added that while the virus will be around for quite a while, the goal of the AHSAA and its member schools is to mitigate the risks to all involved, including fans. When asked about fans, he insisted that would be a decision made by the local schools, or health departments, but expected fans to be in the bleachers when the seasons kick off. He had earlier hinted that the coaches/players box would be extended to give those on the sidelines more room, and that admission to the sidelines would be strictly enforced. In the interview last week, Savarese also stated that there would probably be no handshakes or high fives between players. It may look different, but for now it looks like the season will start on time.

 The Atlanta Braves released their sixty-game schedule last week and the Braves better be ready to play when they take the field since they will play twenty straight games to open the season before getting a day off, and have only six days off the entire season. The Braves will open the season on the road against the Mets on July 24 as part of a three-game series, and are set to close the abbreviated season on Sept. 27 with a three-game home series against the Boston Red Sox. The schedule includes ten games against each team in their own division, with the remaining twenty games against teams from the American League East, including six games against the Red Sox and four against the Yankees. I'm sure Braves fans hope the season will get off to a better start than did the beginning of pre-season drills, since four players (including two All-Stars) tested positive for COVID-19, two other players (both former All-Stars) opted to sit out the season for health concerns, and one coach also decided to sit out the season. Nothing is set in stone due to the ever-changing landscape of COVID-19, but it already looks like the 2020 season is going to interesting.

 I know that professional sports are a big money business, but for the life of me I can't see how any one players can be worth over $3 million per game! That's what the numbers came out to recently when Kansas City Chiefs quarterback Patrick Mahomes signed a 10-year, $503 million contract with the Chiefs. The salary, the biggest ever in the history of professional sports, includes $477 million in guaranteed money, which means he can earn that salary even if he never takes another snap. Mahomes led the Chiefs to their first Super Bowl title in fifty years last season in only his second season as a starter, and has obviously convinced the Kansas City front office that it cannot win without him. With the COVID-19 virus putting all sports in somewhat of a 'wait and see' mode, the new contract seems a little crazy to me. I'm sorry, but I will never believe that any professional athlete in any sport will ever be worth $3 million per game.

 Now that the dominos have started to fall in the world of college football many fans and so-called experts have doubts there will even be a season. Okay, I know that the Big 10 and PAC 12 have decided to play just conference opponents, which wiped out a lot of highly publicized match-ups, and that as an independent Notre Dame had games cancelled against Southern Cal, Stanford and Wisconsin, but it is still a big money industry and cannot believe the entire season will be called off. One fact that caught my eye was that Brigham Young and Hawaii have both seen their first four games of the season cancelled and will now not open the season until October. Wow! I don't think anybody really cared when the Ivy League, Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association and Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference all cancelled all fall sports, including football. However, with the ACC delaying its football starting date and other big name schools cutting athletic budgets, everyone is keeping an eye on what is happening on a daily basis. Since all the college officials are so worried about travel, I have a solution to the problem for all football fans in the State of Alabama – our colleges just play each other and never cross the state line. Teams in the D1 division would include Alabama, Auburn, Alabama A % M, Alabama State, Jacksonville State, North Alabama, Samford, South Alabama, UAB and Troy. This would give all teams a nine-game schedule, which would be followed by a four-team playoff. The remaining teams would combine to form a six-team division that would include Miles, Tuskegee, West Alabama, Birmingham Southern, Faulkner, and Huntington. They would play a home and home schedule, which would result in a 10-game schedule. I know it will never happen, but it is an interesting idea, at least for me.

 In closing.... Beginning next week, I will start publishing a pre-season look at the football schedules of the teams in the area. Elba will kick off the preview as the Tigers prepare to kick off their 100th season of football. Get ready, the season is getting closer by the day!

Brantley's Leanna Johnson ranked as the sixth best D1 college pitcher in the nation

Former Brantley Lady Bulldog softball standout Leanna Johnson has continued her pitching success during her two-year career at Troy University and recently made national headlines when she was chosen as the nation's sixth best division 1 collegiate pitcher by Softball Pitcher Analytics.

The analytical rankings are based on three categories – zone control, pitch ability and durability. Johnson, who pitched 94 of the Lady Trojans 151 total innings played during the abbreviated 2020 season, owned the strike zone and was ranked sixth nationally in strikeouts with 137, while holding opponents to a .153 batting average.

"I am so proud of Leanna," said Lady Trojan head coach Beth Mullins, in a published article. "She is such a competitor and just a true Trojan through and through. I am really excited to get back out there with her and this team and compete in the upcoming season."

Johnson has already etched her name into Troy's single-season record book in victories, strikeouts and shutouts, and was on track to topple her 2019 shutout record after opening the past season with seven shutouts, which ranked first nationally.

While at Brantley High

TROY UNIVERSITY PITCHER LEANNA JOHNSON

School, Johnson led the Lady Bulldogs to four state championships (2014, 2015, 2016, 2018), was named the Class 1A Player of the Year three times, was the 2018 Gatorade Player of the Year, and in 2018 was named 'Miss Softball' in the state.

Her career numbers at Brantley included 162 wins; 1, 714 strikeouts; 29 no-hitters; and, 6 perfect games.

During her freshman season at Troy, she posted 25 wins, including seven shutouts, recorded a 2.19 earned run average, and in 217.1 innings inside the circle recorded 231 strikeouts. Her banner season earned her Sun Belt Conference 'Freshman of the Year' honors, as well as being named first team All-Sun Belt Conference and second team NFCA South Region.

Before the 2020 season was stopped, Johnson had recorded an 11-3 record, owned a 1.71 earned run average, had pitched 10 complete games and in 94 innings of work had already recorded 137 strikeouts.

New pier at Gulf Shore's Gulf State Park is ready to open

By DAVID RAINER

Alabama Department of Conservation and Natural Resources

Lamar Pendergrass believes in the old saying that good things come to those who wait.

The timing of the renovations to Gulf State Park Pier is not what was planned, but Pendergrass assures everyone it will be worth the wait.

"This is going to be what sets the example for any pier that is built on the Gulf of Mexico," said Pendergrass, Alabama State Parks South Region Operations Supervisor. "If people want to see something that is state-of-the-art and done the right way, this is where they need to be."

The $2.4 million renovation of one of the premier piers on the Gulf of Mexico is expected to be completed in July after all the decking and handrails have been replaced as the major part of the renovations.

"The problems with the wood we've had in the past are rot and deterioration, the effects of weather and the elements over time," Pendergrass said.

The treated pine timber on top of the pier decking is showing severe wear and tear with splintering and erosion to the point of being unsafe.

"It's not just the top; it's the understructure," Pendergrass said. "The understructure is pine also, and it's rotten too. We have nothing to screw the deck boards into. Even with 3-inch screws, the joists are too deteriorated to get the board secured. There's nothing left to hold the board down.

"For practicality and safety issues, we couldn't delay this process any longer."

Instead of composite material, a sustainably sourced Brazilian hardwood called ipe (pronounced eepay) was chosen for the decking and top boards on the handrails.

"Ipe is very, very dense and very hard," Pendergrass said. "It has to be predrilled to secure to the joists. You can't just drive a screw into it."

Pendergrass said ipe has a projected lifespan of 30 years compared to 10 years for the treated pine that is being replaced.

"Ipe doesn't flake or become brittle and splinter up on you like the pine will," he said. "It's much harder to cut into, which should alleviate some of the incidents where people like to cut their names into the handrail or cut bait on the handrails. That means less wear and tear and less time our staff will have to use to change out boards and rails."

Instead of the top boards on the handrails lying flat, the boards are tilted to prevent anglers and visitors from leaving material on top of the handrails, and Pendergrass hopes it will discourage birds like gulls and pelicans from using the handrails as perches.

"With the flat boards, we were constantly having to clean them and wash them down," Pendergrass said. "This will make it a lot easier for us to maintain."

Renovations include entirely new lighting at the pier. The current pier lighting, also turtle friendly, includes 35-watt low-pressure sodium and 18-watt high-pressure sodium lights, which are obsolete.

The light poles that currently extend about 18 feet above the decking will be replaced with poles that are about 10 feet tall. The new lights will be LED lights that are turtle-friendly and have six-inch shields to block portions of the light beam. Pendergrass knows that some dedicated pier anglers were not too happy when the scheduled work on the pier was delayed from last winter to this summer. He said it couldn't be avoided.

"In a perfect world, we would have started this work in January," he said. "That is what we had intended to do. Then we were contacted by NOAA (National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration) that they were going to require a biological opinion on this pier to assess impact on endangered species."

Normally, a biological opinion takes about a year to complete. Pendergrass said Conservation Commissioner Chris Blankenship shepherded the opinion process, and the opinion was issued in just a few months.

"The Commissioner really worked hard to get this done," Pendergrass said.

"Visiting the Gulf State Park Pier is almost a rite of passage for people who come to Gulf Shores," said Commissioner Blankenship when the work began earlier this year. "Because it is such an important part of our park, we are absolutely dedicated to maintaining the pier and ensuring it is safe and accessible to our many thousands of guests. We also want to make it is as environmentally friendly as possible for sea turtles and other wildlife."

Pendergrass admitted Gulf State Park was losing significant revenue from the pier during the summer months, but it couldn't be avoided.

"We didn't have a choice but to shut the pier down when we did," he said. "We had to shut it down for the safety of the anglers and visitors."

"We literally couldn't keep up with the repairs. We were changing boards out every day, and we were dealing with the old lighting as well."

In addition, the pier will get a new and vastly improved fish-cleaning station.

 Showing Gratitude

How do we say "thank you" to Jesus? By acts of kindness. Of course, we cannot minister directly to Jesus, as the grateful woman did at Simon's house [Luke 7: 37-38]. But we can minister to our peers. We express our gratitude to God by kind acts to others [Luke 10: 25-37; James 1: 27; 1 John 4: 20.21]. At least, we do if we are truly grateful! If God's grace and forgiveness toward us have produced in us the kind of love they produced in this woman, then that love will show in our treatment of other people. We will show our gratitude by being gracious.

 It's a Learning Process

I learned to ride a bicycle when I was 7-years-old. Thirty years later, I bought my first motorcycle. The transition was an easy one because the principles of balance and steering apply to both. At 82, I'm still occasionally asked, "Have you ever had an accident?" My answer is always, "never a fatal one." I'm still learning as I become a better rider. Steering a boat is similar. Practice makes a skilled helmsman. Controlling our tongues also takes practice. It can take a lifetime to learn how to use our tongues to help and not to hurt. How practiced are you in the steering of others by means of your tongue? — C.R.B.

Caring

"The company that cares." This, or something like it, is the motto of several businesses these days. Lots of churches also use it: "The church that cares." "We care about you." "Where everyone is somebody and you are someone special."

However it is stated, one thing is obvious. Many people want their organization to be known as a caring one. An observer is likely to suspect that some of the users of the slogans about caring use it more as a manipulative gimmick than as a statement of reality. In any regard, there is a lot of talk out there about caring.

One business advertisement had a mistake that some readers saw as a "Freudian slip." A line in the ad went like this: "Although we receive many letters and calls each day, we fake a personal interest in each one." Sadly, much of the talk about caring might be reflected better with the "f" than the "t."

The "big I" and "little you" syndrome is part of the problem. A person may be so involved in himself and his interests that he just doesn't have room to do much caring for another. Fibber McGee used to illustrate this by saying "My wife and I had words-but I never got to use mine."

Genuine caring and concern is easier to talk about than to do. If you find a person who really cares about you, you are blessed. The Apostle Paul apparently thought of the little group of believers in Philippi as "a colony of heaven," because he sensed their love for God, for each other, and for him.

A speaker once was talking to a group about showing love to others. Someone in the audience injected a question. "What if they will not receive your love?" The speaker retorted, "Increase the dose."

People will respond in kind, as a rule, to genuine love. Just remember to "take interest," not "fake interest" in others.

Additional staff hired for EES

by Linda Hodge, Editor

During a special called meeting Tuesday, July 7, of the Elba Board of Education a handful of personnel matters were approved by the board.

Two resignations presented to board members were those of Emily Alverson and Tachae Wright, both teachers at the elementary school. Board member Matt Brunson asked if all paperwork was in place for the resignations, and superintendent Chris Moseley affirmed.

The board next approved recommendations from Moseley for three hires at the elementary school. Principal Debra Strickland confirmed the recommendations came to Moseley from her.

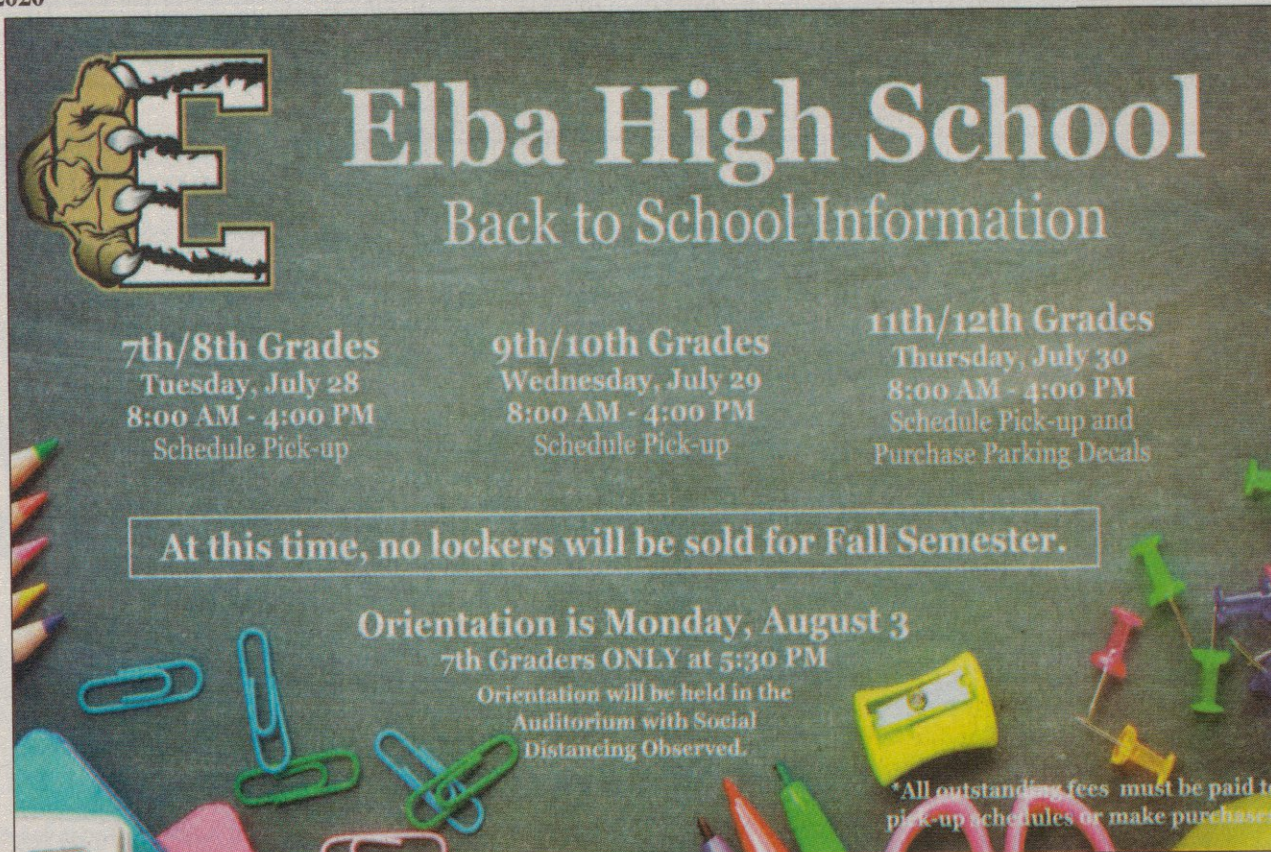

Emilee Davis was approved to fill one of the just vacated spots at EES. Moseley said Davis had been substituting for the school the past couple of years, and she had gotten her certifications back in or to allow her to return to full-time teaching again.

Rebekka Newell was hired as an EES teacher. Moseley said Newell comes to Elba from the Enterprise Early Education Center. He said administrators had been receiving glowing reviews on Newell and were excited to add her to the elementary faculty.

The board also approved the hire of Stephanie Davis as a special education teacher for the elementary school. Moseley said Davis comes to Elba after most recently teaching in Samson. He said she would help pick up some of the case load in special education that is much needed.

The remainder of the meeting was focused on discussing the current plan for reopening Elba City Schools next month [a synopsis of the reopening plan was published in the July 9th edition of The Elba Clipper].

CLUB YESEPOCH INSTALLS OFFICERS...Former President, Marilyn Yelverton (left) passes the gavel to newly elected President, Janie Rogers (right). over 1,000 COVID-19 patients reported as cur-rently in hospitals statewide. He said two weeks ago, that number was approximately 600 COVID hospital pa-tients per day.

Taking all these numbers into account, Brown said his office as well as others ac-ross the state have started making plans of 'what to do' if the hospitals get over-run again with patients.

"Here in Coffee County, we are going by CDC rec-ommendations and are try-ing to be proactive," Brown said. "We always plan for the worst-case scenario."

And, while he said Mon-day's 429 cumulative cases for Coffee County was still just 9/10 of 1 percent of the population, the trend up-ward is still concerning.

"If our percentages go up to 2-3 percent of our pop-ulation with 10-12 percent of those patients hospital-ized, that's too much for our hospitals," Brown said. "We do not want to panic anyone. We are just being cautious but planning for the worst case scenario."

Brown said if citizens would simply listen to the guidelines and recommen-dations being put out by health officials - such as so-cial distancing, wearing face masks, sanitizing regularly, etc. - that there won't be a problem with hospitals being overrun with patients. If citizens ignore the things they are being advised to do, he said that is when the problems become a reality.

"As we go further and further into this, people tend to get lax," Brown said. "That is when things pick up."

Brown said the main point he wanted to make Monday is that things are trending up with positive COVID cases in the county and state. He said he wanted everyone to be aware.

dents get here," Killingsworth said. "That is why our staff will be returning to school several days before the students."

Also during the meeting, Killingsworth said he ex-pects the Coffee County School System to get more students from Enterprise again this year due to the tuition plan at that school sys-tem for those living outside the school district. He said he does not know how many Coffee County will get this year, but he said he would have a plan in place soon preparing to enroll those new students, however many that may be when school starts.

Annsley Padgett honored with a miscellaneous bridal shower

The fellowship hall of Newbia Baptist Church, Elba, Alabama, was the set-ting for a miscellaneous shower honoring Miss Annsley Padgett, bride-elect of Taylor Renfroe, on Sun-day afternoon, June 28, 2020, between the hours of half-past one and three o'clock.

The double front doors were marked with vine wreaths accented with white silk roses. On the porch to the right of the doors stood a WELCOME sign which had been hand painted by Annsley's maternal great grandmother, Nelline Hud-son Taylor. A white tulle bow was attached to the sign. A large pot filled with mixed plants rested on the floor adjacent to the sign.

Bearing her usual smile, Annsley was radiant in a fitted soft pink dress ac-cented with silver lame trim. A corsage of silk var-iegated roses completed her attire.

The honoree greeted her guests at a registry table draped with a pink satin cover and topped with a lace cloth. The table held her wedding book and matching pen set. Also, a watercolor painting of one of the couple's engagement pictures rested on a brass easel be-side her wedding book. One of Annsley's high school artistic friends, Jordyn Banta, created the painting and gifted it to Annsley.

A round table covered with a white floor-length cloth stood adjacent to the registry table. From this table, Anita Grimes served a refreshing punch from a treasured punch bowl. The punch bowl once belonged to a beloved friend of Anns-ley's, the late Helen Snow Smith; but it was given to Annsley several years ago. The base of the punch bowl pedestal was surrounded by asparagus fern, baby's breath, and spring flowers.

In the back of the fellow-ship hall, folds of pink fab-ric trailed down the food bar. A variety of finger foods were served from silver and white tiered ap-pointments situated along the trail of fabric. At one end of the bar stood a large arrangement of limelight hydrangeas and eucalyptus fashioned in a white vase that once sat on the mantle of Annsley's great, great grandmother, the late Lois Bowers Hudson. A canvas wrap depicting the couple's official engagement picture stood next to the arrange-ment.

Several gift tables holding a large variety of gifts were positioned around the spa-cious room. Guests were seated at round tables cov-ered with soft pink table covers. A small arrange-ment of mixed flowers and greenery rested in the center of the tables.

The hostesses for this oc-casion were Ashton Parker, Rene Lambert, Whitney Long, Anna Anderson, Cal-lie Parrish, Kayla Pope, Betty Lawford, Christine Bowden, Anita Grimes, Carolyn Hudson, Marianne Marler, Shelia Brown, Donna Bowden, and Kristen Stinson.

Annsley and Taylor will pledge their vows Saturday, July 18, 2020, at 6:00 in the evening at Pine View Farms. Family and friends are invited.

Miss Annsley Padgett, bride-elect of Taylor Renfroe, was honored with a miscellaneous bridal shower June 28, 2020 at Newbia Baptist Church.
